

OUR FUTURE STARTS WITH YOU

Imagine if everyone in your company knew how much and why they mattered—facing every day with purpose and meaning, comfortable in bringing their unique self and talents to work knowing they will make a difference, and through their connectedness empowering others to know and feel the same.

That's mattering, a mindset to build an engaged, healthy, and productive workforce.

MATTERING IS THE NEW FUTURE OF WORK

With good intent, many companies have implemented Future of Work initiatives to ensure employee well-being. Initiatives focused on improving Leadership, Retention, Culture, Engagement, and Belonging, yet still struggle to see the expected return on investment.

We see it in the stats

81% of employees are not motivated to do their best work because of management

49% of employees are open to leaving their organization

47% of job seekers cite culture as the #1 reason to leave

24% of employees believe that their company cares about overall well-being

Each layer is designed to empower individuals and teams through our mattering construct of “I Matter,” “You Matter,” and “We Matter” for personal and professional success.

Understanding every business is different, we take a human-centered design approach to problem-solving, integrating human and business needs and the possibilities of connection.

Our expert Experience Design team will work closely with you to ideate a mattering framework for success through experiences that drive real engagement and transformation.
